Robert J. Sawyer is a member of both the Order of Canada (C.M.) and the Order of Ontario (O.Ont). He is one of only eight people (and the only Canadian) ever to win all three of the world's top awards for best science-fiction novel of the year: the Hugo, the Nebula, and the John W. Campbell Memorial Award. According to the Locus Index to Science Fiction Awards, he has won more awards for his novels than anyone else in the history of the science-fiction and fantasy fields.

Rob has sold 24 novels to major publishers, including FlashForward, the basis for the ABC TV series of the same name. Quill & Quire, the Canadian publishing trade journal, calls him "one of the 30 most influential, innovative, and just plain powerful people in Canadian publishing."

Rob has published in both of the world's top scientific journals, Science (guest editorial) and Nature (short story), and he is a member of scriptwriters' unions Writers Guild of Canada and Writers Guild of America. He holds a Bachelor of Applied Arts degree (B.A.A.) in Radio and Television Arts from Ryerson University in Toronto (1982) and Honorary Doctorates from Laurentian University (D.Litt., 2007) and the University of Winnipeg (LL.D., 2014).

The World's Top Honours in Science Fiction

Robert J. Sawyer has won all three of the world's top science-fiction awards for best novel of the year: the Hugo, the Nebula, and the John W. Campbell Memorial Award. He is one of only eight writers in history — and the only Canadian — to have won all three (the other such winners are Paolo Bacigalupi, David Brin, Arthur C. Clarke, Joe Haldeman, Frederik Pohl, Kim Stanley Robinson, and Connie Willis):

- Winner, World Science Fiction Society's Hugo Award (the world's top honour in SF) for Best Novel of 2003 (for Hominids).
- Winner, Science Fiction and Fantasy Writers of America's Nebula Award (the "Academy Award" of the SF field, and the top U.S. honour in SF) for Best Novel of 1995 (for The Terminal Experiment, which in addition to its win received, by far, more recommendations [SFWA's term for nominations made by members] for the Nebula Award than any work in history).
- Winner, John W. Campbell Memorial Award (the world's top juried award for SF) for Best Novel of 2006 (for Mindscan).

In addition to his Hugo Award win for Hominids, Sawyer has twelve other Hugo Award nominations to his credit:

- Eight-time finalist, Hugo Award for Best Novel of the Year (for The Terminal Experiment [1996], Starplex [1997], Frameshift [1998], Factoring Humanity [1999], Calculating God [2001], Humans [2004], Rollback [2008], and Wake [2010]).
- Finalist, Hugo Award for Best Novella of the Year (for "Identity Theft" [2006]).
- Two-time finalist, Hugo Award for Best Short Story of the Year (for "The Hand You're Dealt" [1998] and "Shed Skin" [2005]).
- Finalist jointly with Brannon Braga and David S. Goyer, Hugo Award for Best Dramatic Presentation (Short Form) (for "No More Good Days," the pilot episode of the FlashForward TV series based on Sawyer's novel [2010]).

In addition to his Nebula Award win for The Terminal Experiment, Sawyer has two other Nebula Award nominations to his credit:

- Finalist, Nebula Award for Best Novel of 1996 (for Starplex).
- Finalist, Nebula Award for Best Novella of 2005 (for "Identity Theft").

In addition to his John W. Campbell Memorial Award win for Mindscan, Sawyer has four other John W. Campbell Memorial Award nominations to his credit (making him tied for second place for the largest number of Campbell nominations in history):

- Four-time finalist, John W. Campbell Memorial Award for Best Science Fiction Novel of the Year (for Calculating God [2001], Hominids [2003], Rollback [2008], and Wake [2010]).

Canada's Top Honour in Science Fiction

Robert J. Sawyer holds by far the record for winning the Canadian Science Fiction and Fantasy Award (“the Aurora Award,” established in 1980), with sixteen wins to date:

- Recipient, Lifetime Achievement Aurora Award [2013] (see “Career Honours,” above, for details).
- Winner, first-ever (and only so far) Aurora Award for Best of the Decade (for the decade 2001-2010): The Neanderthal Parallax Trilogy consisting of Hominids [published 2002], Humans [2003], and Hybrids [2003]; award presented 2017.
- Eight-time winner, Aurora Award for Best English Novel of the Year: for Golden Fleece [published 1990], The Terminal Experiment [1995], Starplex [1996], FlashForward [1999], Wake [2009], Watch [2010], Wonder [2011], and Quantum Night [2016]; the wins for Wake, Watch, and Wonder — the three volumes of Sawyer’s WWW trilogy — mark the only time in the history of the Auroras that all three volumes of a trilogy have individually received the award.
- Five-time winner, Aurora Award for Best English Short Story of the Year: for “Just Like Old Times” [published 1993], “Peking Man” [1996], “Stream of Consciousness” [1999], “Ineluctable” [2002], and “Biding Time” [2006]; 1993 award presented to Sawyer by Canada’s first astronaut, Marc Garneau.
- Winner, Aurora Award for Best Work in English (Other) (for Relativity, a hardcover collection of stories and essays [published 2004]).

In addition, Sawyer has a record-setting 33 other Aurora nominations to his credit.

Other National Honours for Science Fiction

Robert J. Sawyer is the only writer in history to win the top national science-fiction awards in the United States (the Nebula, see above), Canada (the Aurora, see above), China, Japan, Spain, and France:

- Winner, Yinhe Award (the Galaxy Award, China’s top honour in SF) for Most Popular Foreign Author, presented at the Chengdu International Science Fiction and Fantasy Conference, and sponsored by SF World, China’s (and the world’s) largest science-fiction publisher, presented 25 August 2007, with Sawyer flown in as special conference guest.
- Three-time winner, Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya’s Premio UPC de Ciència Ficción (Spain’s top SF award, and, at 6,000 euro, the world’s largest cash prize for science-fiction writing) (for Factoring Humanity [1997], FlashForward [1998], and Identity Theft [2004]); only person ever to win this award three times.
- Three-time winner, Seiun Award (Japan’s top honour in SF) for Best Foreign Novel of the Year (for End of an Era [1996], Frameshift [2000], and Illegal Alien [2003]).

- Winner, Le Grand Prix de l'Imaginaire (France's top honour in SF) for Best Foreign Short Story of 1996 (for "You See But You Do Not Observe").

Other Selected Awards and Honours

According to the Locus Index to Science Fiction Awards, Robert J. Sawyer is the #1 all-time worldwide leader in number of award wins as a science-fiction or fantasy novelist, with 21 wins for his novels to date (second place goes to British author China Miéville, who has 14 wins; US authors Stephen King, Ursula K. Le Guin, and Connie Willis are tied for third place with 12 wins apiece), and Sawyer is also the #1 all-time leader in number of award nominations as a science-fiction or fantasy novelist, with 57 nominations for his novels to date (second place goes to Stephen King, who has 46 nominations).

In total, Robert J. Sawyer has won 55 national and international awards for his work in the science-fiction field (including awards for novels, short fiction, scriptwriting, young-adult fiction, and his career as a whole), and has 143 award nominations to his credit. Among his honours:
